Summary: This session aimed at sensitizing students towards the expectations an employer may have from an employee at the time of interview. With her rich experience in recruiting for various companies, the speaker shared her insights on industry expectations from freshers. It was mentioned that sound content knowledge and good hold on soft skills is a must for a B- School graduate. If any student is not comfortable with communication skills, he/she must change himself/herself during these two years. Also that, the most important thing which an interviewer looks in a candidate is the attitude, passion to learn, confidence and body language, termed as “Fire in the Belly”.
