Part 1

Aim of the event :

- The twin fold objective of the competition was to make students aware about the dynamic environment and managerial role in it. The activity was also concerned with making students more creative and motivates them to come up with some original, innovative and creative philosophies and ideas.

Part 2

Abstract :

This activity helped students to think spontaneously and helped their brain to process things faster. It also helped in overcoming fear of public speaking and enhancement in communication skills. Such activities help student in brainstorming and help in exploring their knowledge and general awareness. Students participated in activity with great enthusiasm and zeal in order to showcase their creative thinking and literary skills.

Some of the topics for the extempore were as follows-

- Reservation in India
- Religion
- College Life
- Time Management, etc.

To begin with, anchors of the event announced the rules to all participants and gave them their respective topics. Each participant had one minute to think and prepare matter pertaining to the topic and then speak for another one minute. The students came up with some captivating and encouraging points.

The entries were judged by, the guest of the day, Mr. Ahiraj Mehra, Head of Start-up Advisory, Coral Bay Advisors pvt. Ltd. The parameters for judgment included relevance with the topic given, confidence, creativity, time management and clarity of message. Cash prizes were awarded to students for first three winners and certificate to consolation winners and all participants.
