Photo walking is the act of walking with a camera for the main purpose of taking pictures of things that a photographer might find interesting. It can also be a time of learning new techniques and sharing your own knowledge and ideas with fellow photographers.

The activity also creates an energy and atmosphere when a group of like-minded individuals with a common goal come together and in this there will be exchange ideas, sharing of work, build contacts and it goes without saying that you will be making new friends.

The photography walks introduce photographers to great photographic places close to home and often through the walks connections are made with the care takers of these places, which could offer venues for future projects.
